New Library Website Coming Soon!

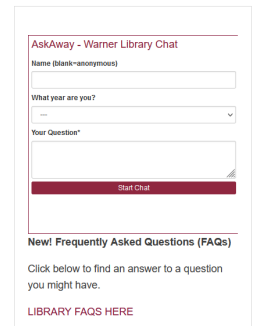

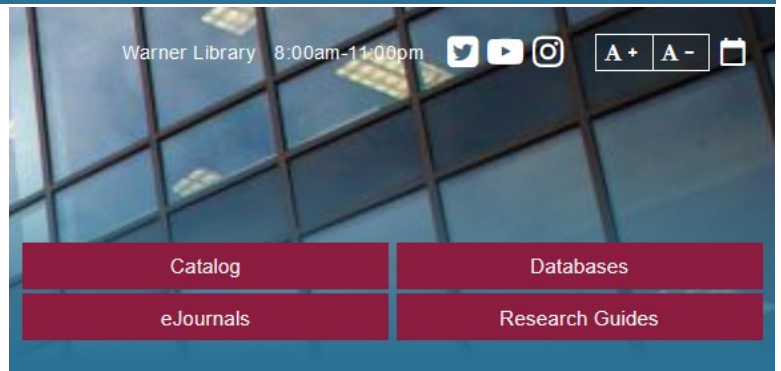

By Chelsea Post

On May 16, Warner Library will be completing major overhauls to its website. Look forward to seeing a brand new interface hosting all of the great services you're familiar with, from searching for resources with our easy-to-find search bar to chatting with a librarian.

The website is being built from the ground-up with features that benefit researchers, such as built-in widgets and adaptive layout. There is also mobile functionality and accessibility features such as text resizing, making the new website more user-friendly.

More news will be coming about our new URL so you can update your bookmarked links, so stay tuned to your Eastern emails! If you have any questions, feel free to email Chelsea Post at cpost@eastern.edu.

Last Round starts this Monday!

Vote for a chance to win a $25 Amazon gift card

Do you love poetry and coffee? If so, then Warner Library has the perfect contest for you!

Throughout April, Warner Library will be hosting two poetry contests in which students are encouraged to create and submit a piece of poetry that falls under one of two themes: Free Verse & Blackout poetry.

We will provide prompts, stationary and other art supplies in the library to create your poem, or feel free to participate online via our Instagram.

The winner of each poetry theme will receive a $20 gift card to a coffee shop.

Research guides (also known as library guides or LibGuides) are mini websites designed to manage content and share information in the online library space.

The LibGuide platform allows for easy navigation through and instruction on core and relevant resources in a particular subject, class, or assignment.

Provide students with library curated resources tailored to your instruction simply by linking to a research guide in your Brightspace course.

Wall Street Journal unveils new media literacy tool

INDEPENDENT NEWS

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

INDEPENDENT OPINION

News Literacy

“Trust is a precious thing, and at Dow Jones and The Wall Street Journal, we are responsible for earning the trust of our readers every day. We are committed to providing the tools needed to help differentiate high-quality, fact-based news and analysis from misinformation.”

Almar Latour

Chief Executive Officer, Dow Jones & Co.

Publisher, The Wall Street Journal

We recognize the immense challenges faced by students who must find reputable sources for news and research. WSJ's News Literacy resource can help support them in this endeavor. This new website contains a collection of educational resources, including videos that highlight the difference between news and opinion, WSJ's newsroom standards and ethics practices and how WSJ's advertising policies help journalists remain impartial.
