A newsletter of Warner Memorial Library

October 2023

Looking for a new e-book? Check out our Salem Press collection!

Warner Library has a number of e-book collections amongst their resources, including the Salem Press & Grey House eBook Collection, found on our databases homepage. These e-books cover a range of topics from history and literature to career management and science—great reference materials for easy knowledge! Below are just a few examples of titles you can find on the site. Questions? Contact Chelsea Post at cpost@eastern.edu.

A Note from Our Information Literacy Librarian

By Caroline Coriell

During the week of October 9th, the library had the pleasure of meeting with students currently enrolled in INST 150 or 151. During that time, we reviewed some library resources available to students that we believed would be helpful in an upcoming assignment. We are grateful to the professors for granting us this time, and a chance to meet the students.

If any student finds themselves struggling to find sources or wanting verification on their citations, we encourage them to schedule a research consultation with a librarian. This is not an exclusive offer for INST 150.

We look forward to seeing you in the future, and wish you a productive rest of the semester.

FACES, PLACES & LIMINAL SPACES

PRINTS FROM THE GOEBEL COLLECTION

Warner Library is once again collaborating with Montco and Patrick Rodgers, Galleries Director at the college, to showcase the third installation of the Harry C. Goebel print collection.

There are a number of events taking place on the campus, including the exhibit itself titled Faces, Places, and Liminal Spaces: Prints from the Goebel Collection from October 16 to December 15. Held at the Blue Bell Fine Arts Center Gallery, this exhibit will showcase prints from the Renaissance through the mid-20th century and focuses on portraiture, caricature, creatures and compelling views of nature and architecture by graphic artists from Europe, North America and Japan. Featured artists include Goya, Renoir, Picasso, Whistler, Minami, Watanabe and more. Two separate curatorial tours of the exhibit will take place on October 24 from 4-5PM and 5:30-6:30PM.

Additionally, the event titled Manga and Mochi with Marina will take place on November 13 from 5-6:30PM. International scholar of Japanese visual culture Marina De Melo Do Nascimento will host a discussion about the history of Japanese manga and printmaking, as well as their influence today. Mocha will be provided while participants view the manga on display in the exhibit.

Both events are free and open to the public. Any questions? Contact Joy Dlugosz, Director of University Libraries, at jdlugosz@eastern.edu.
